

Not Coronavirus Not Assessment

But something different...

Chocolate and Easter

In Australia, where Easter is a traditional event in our calendar with Good Friday & Easter Monday public holidays

- Traditionally the Easter Bunny arrived with chocolate or sugar eggs.
- But there has been a move to replace the bunny [which is an introduced species and a pest] with the indigenous and endangered bilby. Now in Australia we have the Easter Bilby.

Real

v

Chocolate

So I had a chocolate bilby and little bilbies to share with you in the last class...alas not to be.

- And for our Muslim students, Cadbury and other chocolate manufacturers here state that all their Easter eggs & products are also halal. They are just chocolates in a special shape.
- The giving of eggs means renewal, and are a custom, not at all a religious practice.

- To the Christian students:

